

---

Ceiba - Washington\'s little tequila secret

Posted by The Tequila Guy - 2007/09/08 21:40

---

When in DC, you've got to try Ceiba. It's not the typical tequila tex-mex place. It's got great latin-inspired food and about 50 tequilas. I had Don Fulano Silver and Tres Generaciones Silver. They both were fantastic and quite different. The Don Fulano was refined and spicy. The Tres G was elegant; full of agave and fruit.

This is DC's tequila secret. Feel free to share.

=====

Re:Ceiba - Washington\'s little tequila secret

Posted by SirGringo6 - 2007/09/12 12:09

---

I'm making plans one day to head that way and will definitely stop in there to try the TRES G Silver. Actually Tres G Anejo was my very first Tequila ever purchased. Funny story was that I was sent to get a Bottle of some real fine Vodka and they didn't realize that I was a tequila freak. So I searched the shelf of this really run down liquor store and I spotted that dust covered bottle of the 3 Dons' I said to myself "Scott by that expensive Bottle and come one with the Tequila. make the party in Gaylord Michigan more unique and Salute to the Dons of the World" LOL

=====